Q.1.

The Sea

The sea is a hungry dog,
Giant and grey.
He rolls on the beach all day.
With his clashing teeth and shaggy jaws
Hour upon hour he gnaws
The rumbling, tumbling stones,
And 'Bones, bones, bones, bones!'
The giant sea- dog moans,
Licking its greasy paws.

And when the night wind roars
And the moon rocks in the stormy cloud,
He bounds to his feet and snuffs and sniffs,
Shaking his wet sides over the cliffs,
And howls and hollos long and loud.

But on quiet days in May or June,
When even the grasses on the dune
Play no more their reedy tune,
With his head between his paws
He lies on the sandy shores,
So quiet, so quiet, he scarcely snores.

Q.2.

Susie and Rover

1. "Mama," said Susie Dean one summer morning, "May I go to the woods and pick berries?"
2. "Yes", replied Mrs. Dean, "but you must take Rover with you."
3. Susie brought her little basket, and her mother packed a nice lunch for her. Susie also brought a tin pail for collecting the berries in and called Rover - a great Newfoundland dog - and gave him the basket to carry.
4. Away she went down the lane, singing. When she got to the woods, she put her lunch basket down and began to pick berries. Rover ran about, chasing a squirrel and a rabbit, but never straying far from Susie. By the time the tin pail was two-thirds full, Susie was hungry and began to eat her lunch. Rover came and took his place at her side. But Susie was in a selfish mood and did not offer him anything.
5. "There Rover, run away! Be a good dog," she said. But Rover stayed near her, watching her steadily with his clear brown eyes. So, all he got was a small crust of gingerbread that Susie threw away.
6. After lunch, Susie played for a while by the brook. Then she began to pick berries again. She enjoyed the afternoon very much. She tried to forget how selfish she had been and started back for home.
7. When they were nearly out of the woods, a rustling in the underbrush caught her attention. "I wonder if it is a bird or a squirrel." she said to herself. "If I catch it, how glad I will be!". But she was terrified when she saw a large snake coiled up before her and was unable to move. But brave Rover, springing forward, scared it away. Susie put her arms around his neck and burst into tears. "O Rover," she cried, "You dear, good dog! How sorry I am to be so selfish!" Rover understood the tone of her voice and ran about happily.
8. Susie never forgot the lesson of the day and Rover had a big feast dinner that night, for sure!
